My opinion is that Zoom should stay forever. The practice of law is much better because it affords lawyers more time for cases and that serves the clients better. Without the hassle of driving from court to court there's more time to interact with clients and understand their expectations and achieve reasonable goals. It's better for the defense attorney and better for the client. It prevents a lot of miscommunication and misunderstanding. There's less stress and pressure on the attorney. There's more time to focus on a case rather than worry about getting from court to court on time while a client took a day off from work and is waiting on his attorney to show up.
