C. Describe how the accident or occurrence happened: (If a diagram will assist your explanation, please use reverse side of this form.)

Sarina Gott was known to be a carrier for sickle cell trait. This was known to Dr. Shonowo from the first pregnancy that resulted in a delivery on 9/4/11. Dr. Shonowo was part of a group of obstetricians who cared for Ms. Gott at Bay OB/GYN. Other physicians' names from that group are currently not known as neither claimant nor counsel have the records, but the group's website lists Drs. Steven Berkman, Eumena Divino and Steven Goldberg as doctors working there now. However, there was never any testing done during first pregnancy of the father, Isaiah Johnson to determine if he was also a carrier. That baby was not affected.

Sarina Gott went to Dr. Shonowo for her second pregnancy. Dr. Shonowo had since left Bay OB/GYN and was now in Fords. No testing was performed on the father, Isiah Johnson, during the second pregnancy to determine if he carried the sickle cell trait. No testing was performed on the baby during the pregnancy to determine if he was affected. Isiah Johnson, Jr. was born in December 2014 and at age five months (approximately) was found to have sickle cell disease.

Had the parents known during the first pregnancy that they were both carriers there would have not been another pregnancy. Doctors, including Dr. Shonowo should have tested the father during the first pregnancy and the second pregnancy. Had the discovery that the baby was affected been made as it ought to have been during the second pregnancy it would have been terminated.

Was any previous notice of this accident given to any official of Rutgers University?

No
