

4.10 BILATERAL CONTRACTS

D. FORM OF CONTRACT (Approved 5/98)

There is no requirement that a contract be in writing, that it be dated, or that it be signed by either party.¹ It can be entirely oral, or it can be partly oral and partly in writing.

A contract can be made of several different documents if the parties intended that their agreement would include the various documents together.

¹Unless the Statute of Frauds or some other statute applies and requires that a particular agreement is in writing.
