TESTIMONY OF A COOPERATING CO-DEFENDANT OR WITNESS the indictment and trial of the defendant arose] [another criminal matter].⁴

(In all cases)

The law requires that the testimony of such a witness be given careful scrutiny. In weighing his/her testimony, therefore, you may consider whether he/she has a special interest in the outcome of the case and whether his/her testimony was influenced by the hope or expectation of any favorable treatment or reward, or by any feelings of revenge or reprisal.

If you believe this witness to be credible and worthy of belief, you have a right to convict the defendant on his/her testimony alone, provided, of course, that upon a consideration of the whole case, you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt.

There may be other circumstances where a prosecution witness may have a motive to curry favor with the State, e.g., when the witness is on parole or probation, and/or facing other pending or potential charges. In such instances, an appropriate cautionary charge should be tailored to the facts.
