Burlington Vicinage Probation Officers Honored

Seven Burlington Vicinage probation officers received service awards from the Chief Probation Officers Association of New Jersey on July 17 at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex in Trenton.

Kathy Gusz and Kevin Burley received Career Achievement Awards. Gusz is a court services supervisor in child support services and was recognized for being a consummate team player and the delivery of excellent customer service. Burley is a senior probation officer in child support services who was recognized for his attention to detail.

Four probation staff received the Meritorious Service Award. William Griffin, senior probation officer in the adult supervision unit; Kristin Narkiewicz, senior probation officer in child support services; Tim Moyer, probation officer in the adult supervision unit; and Tracy Rogers, senior probation officer in child support services. The recipients were recognized for their leadership abilities and willingness to accept new challenges.

Jessica Roberts, senior probation officer in child support services, received the Outstanding Achievement Award. Roberts was recognized as being a vital contributor to the bench warrant process and for promoting a strong work environment.

“Our vicinage is proud of the work done daily by our probation division staff,” Trial Court Administrator Jude Del Preore said. “We acknowledge the efforts of the seven award recipients. These individuals reflect the outstanding leadership in refining the quality of our service, dedication and commitment to the community.”
